When all the FBI files related to the killing of Martin Luther King Jr. are released, they will amount to approximately 100,000 pages, says a Justice Department spokesman. The release of the files will be done in a series of batches, beginning with the files on the assassination of Dr. King in April 1968. The files on the assassination of Dr. King will be released first, followed by the files on the assassination of Dr. King's wife, Coretta Scott King, in 1968. The files on the assassination of Dr. King's son, Martin Luther King III, in 1991, will be released last.

The study, which was only starting this month, looked at various demographic groups such as age, sex and a person's ethnic background, as well as the amount of time people spent using their computers. The study is still in the early stages, but researchers expect to find that people who use the Internet more often are more likely to be young, male, and have higher education levels. The researchers also expect to find that people who use the Internet more often are more likely to be employed, have higher income, and live in urban areas. The researchers also expect to find that people who use the Internet more often are more likely to be married, have children, and live in the United States.
